Politics of Gender & Justice: The Intersection of Identity & Disciplines

This one day conference, hosted by Women and Gender Studies at George Mason University, brings together scholars (including undergraduate and graduate students), policy makers, artists, & activists from th region to wrestle with ideas and strategies to move forward toward a just world in theory and practice.

Potential topics include but are not limited to:

- Experiences of just politics and communities
- How we address and interact with systems of injustice
- Cultural and artistic interventions
- Crafting just policies, from the local to the global
- Methods of change: peaceful protest, disruption, violence
- Blame and forgiveness: uses and limits in righting historical wrongs

We are accepting proposals for roundtable presentations, posters, and art installations.
The conference is free and open to the public. Free admission does not require giving a presentation.
Lunch is provided as well as light breakfast and an afternoon break. The conference will be held at Georg Mason University- Arlington Campus in Founder's Hall.

For questions please contact Tashia Harris at 703-993-2896 or lharri21@gmu.edu

Submissions Due: March 15th

Please send submissions to gmuwmst@gmail.com

May 3, 2014 GEORGE MASON UNIVERSITY 9am -4pm