

Deloitte Consulting's Bioengineering Scholarship Application Form

With the generous support of Deloitte Consulting, the Department of Bioengineering is pleased to announce the 2020 Bioengineering Scholarship. The Deloitte Scholarship is available to Juniors with a declared major in Bioengineering at George Mason University. Juniors are students with more than 60 credit hours and who are not graduating next summer. Historically, students selected for this scholarship have demonstrated strong academic performance and have focused their career goals on applying their engineering training to solve problems in health care. Selection of the Deloitte Scholarship awardee may be based exclusively on merit, however compelling situations involving financial need will also be considered among the criteria. The 2020 scholarship level is $1,000.

To be considered, interested students should complete the attached form and submit in hardcopy to the Bioengineering office (3100 Peterson Hall) by no later than January 31st, 2020.
