

Central Intelligence Agency Resume Call

The Central Intelligence Agency (yes, the CIA) safeguards the United States from threats posed by our foreign adversaries. We work diligently to know the plans and intentions of those who intend to do us harm and we need students from every possible major and background to help us. Many employers recruit on campus, but few can provide the opportunity for you to use your knowledge, skills, and abilities towards a more important mission.

If you are majoring in one of the below areas or a closely related field, the CIA is very interested in having you submit your resume.

- Schar School: Government and international politics, global affairs, or commerce.
- CHSS: Sociology, communications, criminology, psychology, or journalism.
- CVPA: Graphic design (or other creative technologies, interactive design, or human-centered design).
- School of Business: Finance, accounting, business administration, project management, or supply chain management.
- Volgenau: Data analytics, engineering, computer science, or network forensics.
- College of Science: Forensic psychology, forensic science, or biology.
- Other: HR, Conflict & Analysis Resolution,

Also searching for students with fluency in/studying Russian, Arabic, Farsi, Chinese, or other languages.

*Please note: all positions require U.S. citizenship.

The CIA has numerous full-time positions as well as undergraduate and graduate internships and scholarships.
